Translation procedures

As part of the quality system or of the documents defining the manufacturing process, the manufacturer should have procedures for ensuring accurate translation of e.g. labelling, instructions for use and product claims in marketing material.

These are especially important for user instructions where the safety and claimed performance of the device may be compromised through inadequate translation.
Rev. 7: Notified Body Meeting, Brussels, September 24 & 25, 1996:
It was decided to give back this document (rev 6) to the task force for drafting a new proposal. The following points will be considered:
- to change the word "advisable" into "necessary".
- The last sentence should be clearer or deleted.
- The sentence "The manufacturer ... procedures for ensuring accurate translations" was contested by the industrial federations since the requirement of translation is part of a national law and is not a requirement from the notified bodies. Norbert Anselmann should favorise an approach where the manufacturer takes on board sufficient responsibility with regard to other languages. Johann Rader stated that the manufacturer who wishes to bring the product on the market with relevant community languages should have appropriate measures to verify that those languages are correct.

Rev. 8: Meeting of NBR Group, Essen, September 29 & 30 1997:
The above mentioned thoughts were considered and a easily changed text was elaborated. The words "it is necessary" were deleted.
